DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The age of this ¹⁰⁹ structure is uncertain but I conjecture, from some details, that it was built in the 1st 1/2 of the nineteenth century, however, it may be later.

The W. end of this two part house apparently is the original. It rests upon a high stone foundation and is 1 1/2 stories in height with one room to each level. The logs on this section are, for the most part, hewn square and joined by a simple form of dovetailing. There are traces of a one storey porch at the S. front. The S. wall is three bays: single door flanked by a single door to each side. At the roof level is a single centered dormer.

The E. end is of a single story and almost crude in detail. This portion has almost completely collapsed.

Both sections are connected together by a large chimney which has openings on both sides at both 1st. & attic levels.
